Totally Bedraggled Appeal For Contributors

Montambanco Productions is looking for men who have been affected by prostate cancer to take part in an important new film.

Prostate cancer kills a man every hour in the UK. In fact, 1 in 11 men will be diagnosed with the disease in their lifetime. Yet, whilst breast cancer receives huge public support, 70% of adults in the UK don't even know what the prostate does.

But that's all about to change. Totally Bedraggled is a film that will follow eleven men who have been affected by prostate cancer, and who are at different stages of managing the disease, as they embark on an extraordinary journey. Through their personal stories we will discover how this disease affects their lives, relationships and emotions.

Our brave cast will agree to do whatever it takes to put the issue of prostate cancer firmly in the minds of the public, so these ordinary men of all shapes and sizes will join forces and undergo training to become drag queens for one spectacular show at a London club. By literally transforming themselves into women, they will hope to draw attention to their plight – and change the country's attitude to 'male issues' for good.

The film will follow our chaps as they each work with a choreographer, a stylist, and a professional drag queen to perfect a simple lipsync routine to be performed in a one-off cabaret show. If you've seen The Full Monty, you'll know how a group of regular guys with no performance experience whatsoever can get up on stage and capture the attention of the nation. With your help, this film will raise everyone's awareness of a disease that is talked about all too infrequently.

But this will not be just a film about dressing up – it will be humorous and honest in equal measure, including personal accounts and frank discussions about prostate cancer that will make it hard to ignore. We want to make men realise that embarrassment or ignorance is no longer an option.

So, if you happen to be – or know – a fearless fellow who has been affected by prostate cancer or have lost someone to this disease and who could be persuaded to put on a frock and learn a fabulously flamboyant lipsynced number in aid of a good cause, Montambanco Productions would like to hear from you.
